

RECYCLE & TRASH POINTS

The Office Design of Tomorrow is Here

ENVIRONMENTALLY FRIENDLY OFFICE

Don't just place large, bulky trash cans all over the office that end up smelling like lunch from yesterday. With a trash and recycle system that is incorporated into the office space you can have clean and organized trash receptacles in spaces that actually make sense. Customize the configuration into any space – kitchens, workplace islands, or even end-caps. Even modular walls can have trash and recycle stations incorporated into them adding them to your space in a more subtle way.

With an endless selection of colors and finishes, they can match the look and feel of your office. Even personalize labels and icons used to inform employees about proper waste disposal. Customize your recycle and trash points to make a more friendly and cleaner environment for all your office trash.

DO YOUR PART

Make sure you have clear labeling on recycle and trash points to improve recycling behavior in the workplace. Moving recycle and trash points to a communal area will help employees use the right receptacles and help reduce environmental problems by significantly cutting down on waste being sent to landfills. It might seem minor to remove individual trash cans, but you would be surprised how many recyclable items end up in the landfill. These communal trash bins will also consolidate sanitation and help the overall cleanliness of the office.
